

EUGENE W. NEWMAN.

Nearly all of our readers are familiar with the writings of the accomplished "Savoyard," whose articles on the tariff attracted so much attention during the late campaign, so we take pleasure in presenting a picture of the gentleman and a sketch of his life herewith.

Mr. Newman was born in that part of Metcalfe county that was then a portion of the territory of Barren county, Ky., May 3, 1845. His father was a merchant and a student, and a man in comfortable circumstances. Young Newman and his father were the sole survivors of the family of seven whites in 1850, and the son became the companion, friend and confidant of the father. Together they read and discussed the books of the family library, including Thucydides, Herodotus, Livy, Tacitus, Caesar, Plutarch and Sallust, among the ancients, and Hume, De Thou, Gibbon, Smollette, Hallam, Macaulay and Disraeli among the moderns, not to say anything of various other authors, such as Scott, Fielding, Le Sage, Hugo, Cervantes, Murrat, Cooper and others, notably Bolingbroke and Swift among English political essayists of the past, and several American democratic newspapers of the present century. It was here that Mr. Newman got his taste for history, and it lies in the power of every father to cultivate such a taste in a son.

At the age of 18, Mr. Newman found himself, by the death of his father, his own master, and what was worse, the master of plenty of money. It is not surprising that he sowed a crop of wild oats, of which the devil reaped the usufruct long ago and Newman sows no more.

At the age of 23 he was admitted to the bar, in the court room he was not an eminent success, though in the office he did well. A few years later he attracted some attention by means of a series of letters he wrote to the Bowling Green Pantagraph, and shortly thereafter he became the editor of that paper, with the avowed purpose of doubling its subscription list, or running it to the devil, in both of which undertakings, to his utter astonishment, he succeeded.

After 1874 he practiced law a while in Metcalfe and Hart counties and then became editor of the Columbia Spectator. It was published in a Presbyterian town and after hearing the pastor of the Presbyterian church deliver a sermon on St. Bartholomew, Newman wrote and printed a defense of the Catholic Church, and had much to say about the massacre of Glencoe. The result was that the paper lost its patronage and Newman his job.

Then it was that he tried his hand at farming and made a desperate attempt to apply Orange Judd's methods to Metcalfe county soil and significantly failed. He next turned his attention to politics and sought to be a State Senator, but "batted up" against the Campbellite Church and was gloriously left, of course.

Shortly after his defeat for Senator, Mr. Newman secured, through Hon. Jno. W. Caldwell, then member of Congress from the Third District, in securing the position of clerk of the Committee on Invalid Pensions and remained in Washington two winters, but when the Garfield regime came in Mr. Newman got his walking papers and drifted to Mississippi, when he became the editor of the Mason Sun. He ran it like the widow kept hotel for nearly a year, but the inevitable bust came, and Mr. Newman left for Texas and Mexico and finally landed in Cincinnati, and thereby hangs a tale that may some day appear in print.

Forced by circumstances to return to his base, where he was born, Mr. Newman began to write a series of letters to the Glasgow Times over the signature of "Savoyard." J. M. Richardson had taken the handle off and told "Savoyard" to sail in and write just what he pleased. It is unnecessary to say that "Savoyard" availed himself of this privilege and the Times was loaded with good things from his pen for more than a year.

About this time—1881—Mr. Newman wrote a long letter to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat on Kentucky politics, which was reproduced in the Courier-Journal, and upon the first anniversary of the birth of the Louisville Times, Mr. Logan accepted an article from him upon the late Gov. Thomas E. Bramlette. Shortly after the Courier-Journal published several articles by him and in August, 1885, Mr. Newman became a reporter upon the Louisville Times. He was turned into the Exposition and wrote the thing up no less than 110 times for the two papers—Times and Courier-Journal—besides contributing many articles and editorials.

The next winter, and the two following, found Mr. Newman in Washington, corresponding for both papers, and he also conducted a column in the Courier-Journal, entitled "Farmers and Taxation," which was published in pamphlet form in 1888 as a campaign document, and used with great effectiveness.

For two years Mr. Newman has been an editorial writer on the Louisville Evening Times and that is the position he now holds. He is a strong and forcible writer, with a fund of historical and other facts, which make his productions peculiarly entertaining and instructive, and add lustre to the unusually bright editorial page of that model journal. Unassuming and unobtrusive, he has shrunk from the prominence and reputation his writings have given him, preferring to do his work in a quiet manner, without reaping the reward in that line that his abilities entitle him to. Rather reserved in disposition, his personal acquaintance is not so large as some of the Louisville editors, but those who know him best testify loudly to his worth and pronounce him a most lovable as he is a most companionable and accomplished gentleman.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—G. W. Gardenshire, 92, and Miss Emma Acuff, 38, were married in Chattanooga.

—M. S. Morgan and Miss Minnie Fogarty were married at Mr. Nat Fogarty's Saturday. Both parties live near Kingsville.

—Squire Beazley, of Aberdeen, Ohio, has already married 65 eloping couples this year. His last year's work footed up 551 couples.

—J. W. Davis and Miss Mary Ann Wilton, of the Waynesburg section, were married at the court-house by Judge Varmon yesterday.

—T. F. Coffman, of Casey, and Miss Nettie, the 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. Alice Peyton, were married at the bride's mother's near Highland, Friday.

—Dr. Osiah Storey, of Atlanta, whose first wife died in 1848, has just married her niece, who was born 15 years after the death of her aunt. The old gentleman is three score and two.

—Gov. Hill, of New York, who was thought to be a confirmed old bachelor, has decided that it is not well for a man to remain alone, and will shortly lead to the altar a bride whose charms of person are said to rival Mrs. Cleveland's. Miss Bettie Hotchkiss is the name of the pretty creature.

—Chief Justice Fuller telegraphed his forgiveness to his runaway daughter and invited her and her youthful husband to visit them in Washington. The judge is the head of the highest legal tribunal in the world, but he don't dare to kick when cupid moves to be heard, whether he is in order or not. Besides the judge has six more girls and he doesn't want to scare the men off.

—An old woman of 60 and a young man of 27 were married in Cincinnati Friday. The bride's wedding attire was enough to provoke a smile from a horse. She wore a red and green check dress, en train, and her abortive attempt to make the corsage decollete only revealed the ravages and leveling influence of time. Her gray hair had been tightly combed back and gathered in a scraggy Lily Langtry knot. After the ceremony both indulged too strongly in beer and the first night of the honeymoon was spent in police station cells.

—After remaining in the Paris jail two weeks with no prospect of anyone coming forward and going his security for $30 a year for 18 years to support the illegitimate child Miss Cynthia Embry had sworn to him, Charles V. Higgins decided that he had better marry the girl and she being anxious and willing, the knot was tied by Elder J. S. Sweetney. This also settles the suit for $30,000 against Higgins for seducing the girl. He is not yet 21, but has a fortune of $75,000 when he becomes of age. If Higgins loves the girl as his letters produced at the bastardy trial show and which were published in the Kentuckian, he ought to be glad to marry her. They contained such expressions as "My Darling Little Sugar Bird," "My Dear Little Sis," etc. Another one: "You are the only girl I love or ever will love. You will break my heart if I have one. I have been trying to fall in love with another girl, but the h—l of it is I can't."

To The Public.

I have returned to Stanford for the purpose of practicing dentistry and have fitted up for that purpose the same office formerly occupied by me on Lancaster street. My dental outfit is complete and I am now ready to serve the public in any line of my profession. I promise first-class work to all who patronize me, and a share of the patronage is respectfully solicited. W. B. PENNY.

—A colored girl in Flemingsburg gave birth to a child in a stable and a cow ate it nearly up before discovered.

MT. VERNON, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—Prof. Shaw, who comes highly recommended as a teacher, opened a school here yesterday with a good attendance.

—A boy, after visiting the telegraph office here a short time since, went home and told that he had seen a man at the depot working a sewing machine.

—Mrs. Nellie Frazer, wife of John Frazer, of Pittsburg, died Friday morning of dropsy, and was buried at this place Friday. Mr. Frazer was raised in this county and our people deeply sympathize with him in his great loss.

—F. M. Ansley, road master, after a 2 weeks' illness, is again on the road. Joe Adams is in from Paint Lick. Mrs. C. A. Redd is down from Crab Orchard. Capt. Frank Harris writes us from Earlinton that he is nicely situated there as master of trains and sends his regards to all his friends along the line. He says he yet has a home feeling for this division. W. M. Moberly, of London, was here Sunday.

—Joseph Ramsey, a man who has done his part of loafing, beat up Dr. Scarborough on Skagg's Creek last Friday. The doctor is an old and respected citizen and had suffered a number of losses by thieves in the way of cabbage and other vegetables. He was satisfied Ramsey was one of the trespassers and had some time since told him of it. Writs are out for Ramsey's arrest.

—George Payne, aged 20, of this county, run over and killed by the engine of the Altamont Coal Company. He was riding out to the mines to go to work when the accident happened. His remains were brought to Martsburg Saturday for burial. This makes 13 of the family and relatives who have met death by accident, five of whom were run over by trains, three by falling trees, one fell over a cliff and four by accidental discharge of guns and pistols.

—Moses Gatlin, formerly of Jackson county, who of late had been mining in Laurel county, got on a bender at Sinks Saturday and after bullying the people the people there, left saying he would do the same thing for the natives at Pine Hill. He scared a number of them out of their wits, making them beg for life. His attempt to make James Baker leave the place was a failure. He drew a pistol on Baker, but that individual didn't run. Gatlin, afterwards began beating his own wife over the head with a pistol. Baker asked him to desist; instead of doing so he fired a shot at Baker; Baker drew a pistol, which he put into use, one shot from it passing through Gatlin's breast, from right to left mortally wounding him. Baker came in and surrendered. Gatlin's wife had run off from East Bernstadt to Pine Hill with another man and it is thought that is why he was on the war-path.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

—The Baptist church made a unanimous call on Rev. George Hunt to become pastor, last Sunday.

—Please announce in to-morrow's I. J. that the Missionary Sunday-School Convention will be held with the Rocky Ford church, west of Hustonville, Saturday and Sunday next. W. R. GOWEN.

—Rev. John Bell Gibson asks us to request the delegates of the various Sunday-schools that will be represented at the convention here April 4-6, to send their names to him at their earliest convenience.

—The Courier-Journal says Rev. Geo. O. Barnes is sick in Florida, which is untrue. Bro. Barnes is as robust now as a cow boy and describes himself as a cross between that western product and a frontier farmer.

—Quarterly meeting will be held at the Methodist church here beginning next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Presiding Elder Rand not being able to come, Dr. Henderson, of Richmond will fill his office.

—Rev. Ben Helm preached Sunday morning, but owing to a severe cold did not preach at night. He announced that there would be no service at the Presbyterian church next Sunday, which is the 5th, as he had engaged to assist in communion services at Hustonville in the morning and at McKinney in the afternoon.

—Rev. Fred D. Hale has created a big row in his Louisville church by a very unfeeling and arbitrary act. A few nights ago he announced to a large congregation that its subscription to the Baptist Seminary was still in arrears some $50 and that he wanted to raise it at that meeting. "All who are willing to pay $1 to hear a sermon will please stand up." Sixteen arose to their feet. "Those willing to pay 50 cents will please arise." A still smaller number arose. Then a 25 cent proposition was put and so on down to 10 cents, when no one got up. This incensed the young preacher, whose rapid rise has evidently swelled his caput, in other words given him the "big head" and remarking that he wouldn't preach to such a crowd he pronounced the benediction and sent them home. Those who are not indignant with Mr. Hale say that he was sick and his nerves were unstrung, else he would not have acted so rudely and unchristianly.

Faulconer sold Monday to Southern parties 3 nice geldings by Abdallah Manbrino for $900.—Advocate.

—Kentucky widows and orphans have been paid $10,000 so far this year by the Knights of Honor.

—Robert Sawyer, who has three murders credited to him in Arkansas, and one in Texas, added a Louisiana man to his list Saturday.

—At New York Edwin Davis' collection of paintings, 143, brought $243,900. Bastien Lepage's great work, "Joan of Arc," brought $25,000.

—A slick swindler operating at Sharon, Pa., has caught the farmers of Mercer county for nearly $5,000 by purchasing their hay on 30 days' time and at a high price and shipping it to a confederate at Pittsburg.

The prohibition law in Iowa went into operation in July, 1885, although it was not applied to many localities for several months later. In December, 1886, the number of convicts in the State penitentiary was 310; in December, 1887, it had fallen to 286; in December, 1888, it had sunk to 227, although during those years there had been a perceptible increase in the population of the State.

SOME FACTS

About the Carriage Trade.

We want to assure the people of Lincoln county that they can buy any vehicle they want right here in Stanford as cheap and as good as they can get anywhere else. There is not within a radius of fifty miles of Stanford a larger or better selected stock of Buggies, Carriages, Surreys, Phaetons, Buck Board Carts and Spring Wagons than we now have in stock. All of them have been selected from the Standard Manufacturers of the country and a number of our styles were built with a special view to the wants of our customers. We have some fine light carriages and surreys that can not be excelled for lightness, beauty, style and quality. We handle various qualities but in cheap work we handle only the better grade of such.

We sell our grades at uniform prices commensurate with the quality; invariably tell our customers candidly just the quality each vehicle possesses, so far as we know it, and with our experience of 15 years in the business we seldom deceived though it is true that the most conscientious dealer or manufacturer will sometimes be disappointed in the quality of his goods; but we will in the future, as we have invariably done in the past, fully protect our customers against any defects that may develop in any vehicle that we sell, which is an advantage that is most always invariably lost where vehicles are bought away from home.

We have the goods the styles the quality and prices, and guarantee to fully protect you. What else can we do? What more can you ask? Don't you think we deserve the trade of our own county? At any rate, come and see our goods and learn our prices, and if you are not already convinced we think you surely will be.

Respectfully,
GEO. D. WEAREN, Manager.
